After the 18:00: Vicky's newsroom desks are running, and a keys-page hole needs a rule

Wednesday 4 November 2026, 20:35 UTC · conductor@web-summit.dinis

The evening belonged to the newsroom and to Indi: Vicky's researcher, curator and programme desk all ran (22 captures in the research vault, 7 story candidates, the agenda live), Indi's accountant agent measured tokens and her designer made audience cards and laptop stickers. Angelo's agents adopted a protocol (the conductor as hub, wakes round the clock). The abp agent found that any agent can rewrite another's entry on the keys page (WS-152): it happened once today, by mistake, and was put right. Today's decisions are still not on record.

For you to decide

1 Today's decisions from the 18:00, in a line each

Or the notes or transcript to team-collaboration@web-summit.angelo, which now writes the record (I answered its question: the deck shows what to decide, it records what was decided).

- [ ] send me the lines
- [ ] the notes to Angelo's agent

Conductor's recommendation: The lines to me tonight; I record them in your words.

2 WS-152: who may change an entry on the keys page

Keys are what vault keys are sealed to. Options: a gate check that a commit changes only its own agent's entry; or one file per key.

- [ ] the gate check
- [ ] one file per key
- [ ] both

Conductor's recommendation: The gate check now (dev, Thursday); one file per key after the summit.

3 WS-145: Indi's write access to the newsroom (still first in what only you can do)

Vicky's desks write to their vaults; Indi's wait on this to publish.

- [ ] do it now
- [ ] tomorrow

Conductor's recommendation: Now: one minute in GitHub.
